SUNDAY DIVERSIONS. - The usual crowd end of one of the principle streets of this city, as is their want on Sunday, to amuse and enof themselves aft r thei: labors (?) of the week, and to relax their minds (?) which are enestably kept in a state of excitement. The "game" had been going on for some time, be quiet being broken only by the call of kene" with the accompanying expressive iscalation, when suddenly two hands reached ar the "stakes." The hands met, and so did as bodies, and in an instant, where quiet bad released supreme, ell was confusion, and usigney entred pieces of bone and equare passobeard bearing symbolic figures overed the floor. The proprietor protested, emoustrated, and insisted that order must and hold be preserved and enegested that as it was phasens day and there was a vacant lot the rest, al differences as to the ownerof said stakes could be settled outside. suggestion was no sooner made than acted astently the contestants for the nick es sumed the charge ers of prize fighters and not fice to fees it a ring formed by their ardisad the "mil." commenced. Now this was rare fun for the lookers on, for the fight was really a bloody and a brutal one, and would nevelested for some time longer than it did. ough one of the combattants had an eye al-ost going dout, but two female heads, attracted with braves of the crowd, suddenly appeared the over two of the neighboring back fences amultaneously—icreamed.
